people." The fight becomes a tool to win over Aarfa again and in a way, restart Sultan's life. But whatever is complete, dies. Would love to incorporate any suggestions or points that I would have missed. He says that she is her God and Divinity. Just tell me and I would trade anything like Bulleh Shah. Their love is incomplete but there is no shame in it. He can go to any extent and even trade his life if she wants him to. here is the link to the same-Youtube version of this Blog- Bulleya comes at a point in time in Sultan where all is lost and even when he has lost all hope, she becomes the hope that makes him want to change things. However, when she goes by not even acknowledging his presence, he is shattered again. He has become a better person with her love. He realizes that it is possible to forgive himself because of a part of Aarfa that resides in him. Aarfa is the breath of his life and every heartbeat is hers. Maybe their separation demands a sacrifice of his life which he is ready to give if she says. It is interesting to see how he juxtaposes his own disappointment and Aarfa's disappointment in him through this song. When she is not around, he feels dead. He would stop not until she is finally convinced of his quilt. Mera har dum tu Mera mehram tu, marham tu ... Mera har dum dum har dum tu (x2) You are my breath and heartbeats, You are my close friend and you are the balm to my wounded heart. He restates his love for her through these lines and says that she is his life, companion, and comfort. Bulleya becomes the pivot that is the last contact with Aarfa, his wife and also the last chance to ask for her forgiveness before risking his life in the competition. He is having glimpses of life in his ditch of internal death. Notice how perfectly Sultan's face is full of hope and optimism when he sees her coming out from the mosque. Still, he does this daily and offers every bit, be it by dancing or by placating. Singer - Papon Music & Lyrics - & Starring Salman Khan, Anushka Sharma, Randeep Hooda, Amit Sadh Directed By Share HomeHindi AlbumsSultanBulleya© 2022 Saavn Media Pvt Ltd. If you forgive me with love, then I shall be free. Incomplete things stay alive Ho bethi rehti hai umeedein Tere ghar ki dehleezon pe Jiski na parwaaz khatam ho Dil yeh mera wahi parinda hai Bakshe tu joh pyar se mujhko toh ho meri rihaai (x2) Tu bole toh ban jaaun main Bulleh Shah saudai My hopes are stuck at the gate of your houseMy heart is like a bird whose migration never completes. Hence, his efforts are to face himself and finally come at an internal resolution. Main bhi naachun...parwah bulleya Mera har dum ... tu Tu yaad kare ya na mujhko Mere jeene mein andaaz tera Sar aankhon par hai teri naraazi Meri haar mein hai koi raaz tera Shayad meri jaan ka sadka maange teri judaai (x2) Tu bole toh ban jaaun main Bulleh Shah saudai Main bhi .... He does this every day to ensure that he is alive from inside and his emotions have not died. Maana apna ishq adhura Dil na ispe sharminda hai Poora hoke khatam hua sab Joh hai aadha woh hi zinda hai I Agree that our love is incomplete. I feel embarrassed for that mistake. Aarfa becomes that ray of light that he holds on to and tries to climb out of the dark ditch. The very essence of any relationship is the salt of distance. When Aarfa will forgive him, there would be a ray of hope that if his lover forgave him, he can forgive himself too. Maybe the sacrifice of my life wishes for the separation of ours. He is dead from inside and this acts as a push to live on and complete story. His hopes might be stuck on Aarfa's gate but he is actually waiting for the moment when he is able to confront himself and finally be at peace with himself. Aarfa and Sultan have parted ways ever since Sultan was not present when his family needed him the most. The rejections would not matter to him and he would be carefree of the result of his pursuit. Every incomplete thing is alive while completion means death. Bulleya encapsulates the idea of his regret for not being present when his wife Arfa needed him the most and it also becomes the realization of the wrongs that he did to her and everyone else including his unborn son. You can also hear this on Spotify- Kuch rishton ka namak hi doori hota hai Distance is the salt of some relationships. However, he also realizes that he would not be able to climb out of it until he convinces himself that he deserves to get out of it. These lines act as a convincing point for Aarfa but in a way, Sultan is also convincing himself to live on. He gets a glimpse of her and feels alive. Type mp3 Tags Papon Description The song is sung by Angaraag Mahanta (Papon) and composed by Shekhar Ravjiani, Vishal Dadlani while lyrics written by Irshad Kamil. The focus lies on noticing the depth of the voice and how upset, sad, and repenting it is. Dum dum, dum dum tu mera har You are each of my heart beats and breaths. Skip to content Perceptive Colors Song analysis, essays, stories, poems, and photos! Sultan is a movie about a wrestler who gets pulled into the whirlpool of arrogance and self obsession. It is the separation that charges him to amend his life and take efforts to reconcile with Aarfa, and more importantly, himself. Also notice how this is the point where there is no music yet and the lines act as a prologue to the song. Initially, Sultan chooses to wrestle to impress Aarfa and after that, he does it again to seek forgiveness. Tu baat kare ya na mujhse Chahe aankhon ka peghaam na le Par yeh mat kehna arre o pagle Mujhe dekh na tu, mera naam na le Tujhse mera deen dharam hai mujhse teri khudai Tu bole toh ban jaaun main Bulleh Shah saudai Whether you read the messages from my eyes or notO beloved pray do not tell meTo not look at you, or to not whisper your nameFrom you springs my god and my religion, and I am your prayerIf only you told me your wish, I'll trade anything for you, just like Bulleh Shah once did Main bhi naachun (x2), manau sohne yaar ko Chalun main teri raah bulleya Main bhi naachun rijhaun sohne yaar ko Karun na parwah bulleya I shall also dance and convince my loved one And walk your path, Bulleya (referred to Bulleh Shah)I shall also dance and impress my beautiful loved one Without caring about anything, Bulleya! Sultan is sure that Aarfa cares for him even when Aarfa is ignoring and not looking at him. One wrong move costs him the life of his son and his falls apart with a bang. This is literally how she is the source of his life. You can follow me on - WordPress- Gaana- & Instagram Facebook Finally for change. I keep your heartbreak on a pedestal And there is some mystery of yours to my defeat. He believes his ignorance has cost him his life. Just say it and I shall trade everything like Bulleh Shah. His hopes are stuck at the gates of her house and his heart would wander like an aimless bird until she forgives him. Before you dive into the in depth analysis of the song, I suggest that you listen to the song and notice the visuals carefully.

He understands her feelings of contempt towards him. It is important to not meet too. He does not get convinced until the last fight of the movie wherein he is able to defeat the final opponent- himself. Thanks for reading! Let me know in comments how is the analysis. This is perfectly reiterated later in Fateh Khan's remark, "I do not train dead
